CHILD PROTECTION

Recording Information about children -
<https://www.supremecourt.uk/cases/docs/uksc-2016-0220-judgment.pdf> - recent Supreme Court case. This case makes it clear that all professionals needs to have regard to how they record information in children's cases in reports and records, distinguishing between facts, suspicions/concerns and professional opinions. How issues are recorded from the start is extremely important as the court has now made it clear their decisions are made on established facts. For a discussion of facts vs suspicions and concerns, see paras 22-29.
